Cape Cod, MA

This Multi-angle Imaging Spectroradiometer (MISR) image was acquired February 18, 2001, during Terra orbit 6237. White areas are snowcover and thin clouds on the left, and "popcorn" clouds over the ocean on the right. The green color along the coast represents sediment flow. The snow-free coastal area shows the benign effect of the warmer ocean water.
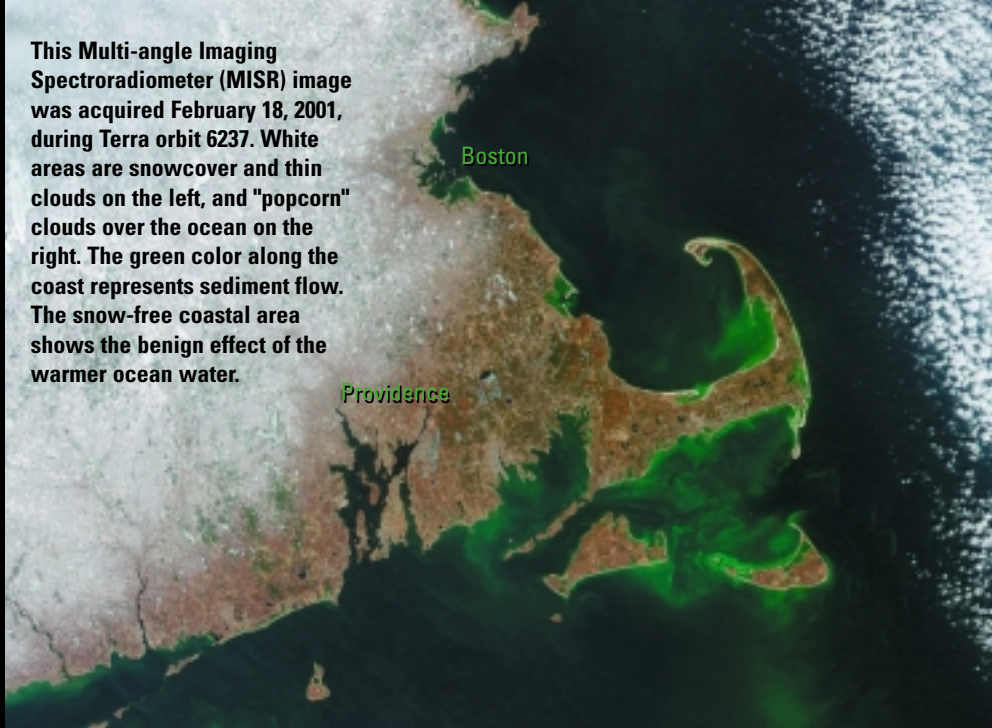

Boston

Providence

Image courtesy of NASA/GSFC/JPL, MISR Science Team

The DAAC Alliance archives and distributes data products from EOS instruments. For information about the DAAC Alliance and their products and services, see http://nasadaacs.eos.nasa.gov.

To search and order data products from the DAAC Alliance, see the EOS Data Gateway at http://eos.nasa.gov/imswelcome.

MISR data available from LaRC DAAC
Data Set: MISR Level 1B2 Ellipsoid Data V001
Granule ID: SC:MI1B2E.001:554638

NP-2001-5-247-GSFC